

JUNTANZA (English version)

JUNTANZA invites us to embark together on an imaginary sailboat, looking at the wind rose. Different routes, horizons, experiences and actors along the four cardinal points. Without borders, only guided by the heart and mind seeking to help break down useless walls. The guiding thread: the diversities that unite us and that allow us to join and care for the planet, the different forms of life, its people and ourselves.

From the Biocultural Diversity and Territories Platform, and Diversity & Development, JUNTANZA has been designed to share a space for reflections, debates and joint initiatives. It is a meeting place between networks, territories, young and old people, initiatives with different signs and scales, failures and successes... With languages that invite conversation and listening.

JUNTANZA was born as a creative and committed medium that encourages us to continue dreaming and to land our dreams in concrete, individual and collective actions.

We hope to be able to publish your original contributions (short texts; images; videos, graphs and everything we can think of), in the language of your choice. If you wish to participate, send us an email to info@diversity-development.com attaching the following information:

- Article
- Name, surname and brief biography of the author
- A small summary about the article (1 or 2 lines)
- 3-5 good quality images that you want to accompany your publication with

The Platform team, through its young artists and communicators, will combine the post in PDF and Issuu format, making it as attractive as possible for a wide dissemination to which we will all contribute. Each author may make a single review before the final publication.

We await your testimonials, your voices, your proposals!
